Flu Full Movie 2013 Tagalog Version Flu is a thrilling, award-winning motion picture that retells the story of the true pandemic history. It tells about the disease that killed over one hundred million people, and it just happens to be available in Tagalog version now. Flu is an epic love story with a heavy dose of science fiction mixed with global warming. Who wouldn't want to watch this movie? The Flu Full Movie Tagalog Version tells about the infamous Spanish Flu pandemic, which was responsible for killing more than 100 million people during its peak between 1918 and 1920. "Flu" also stars Emmy award winner for Best Lead Actress Screenplay Jake Gyllenhaal as Dr. William Ford. It also stars Academy award nominee for Best Supporting Actress Anne Hathaway, which she plays the role of clairvoyant named Maggie Prince whose gift is more of a burden. Dr. William Ford is a public health official who is newly appointed onto the newly formed public health department of Philadelphia after his service in the military during World War I. His job is to lead Philadelphia's response to the flu outbreak that threatens to overwhelm the city's resources and leave it helpless against another deadly wave of Spanish Flu. The Flu Tagalog Version shows about how Dr. Ford comes up with a controversial plan to contain the epidemic by closing off the city and turning it into a quarantine, but he failed to get approval from his superiors. Death toll rises and pressure on Dr. Ford intensifies as neighborhoods become overrun by looters, businesses are shut down and people are dying in their homes. It is a terrifying scenario that is based on a true story about what happened during that fateful time in American history. With Philadelphia under siege, Maggie Prince is fighting her own battle against unseen forces that only she can see. She has been able to communicate with Dr. Ford from afar even though they have never met before. She dreams of the horrors that the city is experiencing and she sees a vision of a great death and destruction. Flu Tagalog Version is a very scary movie because it includes several graphic scenes such as people dying in their homes, looting, and people dying in public places. This is because the Flu was very contagious and many people died from not taking any precautions to avoid getting sick like: washing their hands frequently, wearing masks when they went out into the streets, and staying home if they were sick. This movie shows how bad things can get when we do not take time to prepare for an emergency such as this one. The movie also shows how Dr. Ford reacted to the Flu epidemic and how he was able to save Philadelphia from total devastation. The movie is very suspenseful and you will not want to miss out on this great motion picture that is also available in Tagalog version now. Flu Tagalog Version seems like a classic old-school science fiction film except it is based on the true story of one of the worst pandemics in history. It tells about how Dr. Ford has to make tough decisions about quarantine policy during the Spanish Flu Pandemic, his struggle with his superiors, and Maggie's struggle with her visions about what's really happening outside their windows.
